

BRAND NEW FEUD HAS DEVELOPED IN TAMMANY HALL

Leader Thomas F. Foley Has Declared War on Senator
James J. Frawley.

TREACHERY IS CHARGED

Foley Says Frawley Must Be Ousted from Leadership and State Senate.

A new feud has developed in Tammany Hall. Thomas F. Foley, leader of the Second District and successor to the late "Big Tim" Sullivan as the power of the lower east side, has declared war on James J. Frawley, leader of the Twenty-sixth District in the upper east side, State Senator and Chairman of the Finance Committee of that body, controlling all State appropriations. Speaking to The Evening World to-day, and carefully choosing his words, ex-Sheriff Foley said:

"Senator Frawley must get out not only from the district leadership but also from the State Senate. I intend to do all I can to defeat him. There is no place in the organization for a man who is ungrateful and treacherous to his friends."

FRAWLEY WARNED OF THE COMING ATTACK.

To order that there may be no doubt about his intention, the big leader of the lower east side has served notice on the Senator of what is coming and, further, has informed "the Chief," Charles F. Murphy, of his declaration of war. Senator Frawley is at present in Europe on a vacation trip, but the warning of what awaits his return was given before he sailed.

This feud has been smoldering for some time, but has just burst into flame on account of the appointment last week of Michael A. Rofrano to be first deputy in the Street Cleaning Department under the reform administration. Rofrano was once the protégé and lieutenant of Foley in the Second District, but now is his sworn enemy.

The charge is made by Foley that Frawley formed an alliance with Rofrano in business relating to contracts, particularly in connection with garbage disposal and snow removal. He charges also that Frawley gave help to the Rofrano-Driscoll forces in their persistent warfare to overthrow Foley in the Second District and to destroy the Tammany organization in that part of the city. The old guard considers this treason.

DOUBLE FIGHT ON FRAWLEY IN SEPTEMBER PRIMARIES.

At the September primaries there will be a double fight on Frawley. The first will be to deprive him of the organization leadership in the Twenty-sixth Assembly District, which includes a long, narrow stretch of the upper east side between Ninth and One Hundred and Twenty-ninth streets. Frawley has been leader there for thirteen years, having won out in a hard fought battle against John Ryan. Foley helped him do it and lent him in later fights to sustain his supremacy.

The Twenty-sixth Senate District, which Frawley has represented for ten years, includes his own Assembly District and the adjoining ones, led by John J. Dietz and Nicholas J. Hayes. The big fight will be over the Senatorial nomination. Foley has vowed to put Frawley out of public life and figures that the fall from a dominating position in the Senate and chairmanship of its most important committee is a greater tumble than loss of an Assembly district leadership. So he intends to try to strip Frawley of his yellow jacket as well as the peacock feather.

TAMMANY LEADER AND SENATOR HE HAS DECLARED AGAINST.

THOMAS F. FOLEY

No feud of this magnitude has occurred in Tammany for many years. Foley's power in the lower east side is phenomenal and he is fighting for Tammany all the time in this field, where the shifting of racial populations has made it the most exposed part of the line of battle. Frawley has been a prominent figure in the State political game and allied himself in business to the Cohalans in city contracts and bonding companies.

REALTY MEN ARRESTED, CHARGED WITH FRAUDS

Realty and Commercial Co. said to Have Padded Assets and Stock
Is Termed Worthless.

Joseph H. Rudiger, president and Solomon M. Schatzkin, treasurer of the Realty and Commercial Co., No. 30 Church street, and Otto H. Albansius, a stock salesman, were arrested this afternoon on bench warrants issued by Supreme Court Justice Glenshaw, charging fraud. They were held in $1,000 bail each.

In a statement issued at the end of 1913, the company claimed to have net assets of more than $774,000. On the strength of this statement it absorbed the Phoenix Realty Co. of New Jersey.

Stephen D. Eyre, former secretary of the Phoenix Realty Co. and P. Edward Wisch charge now that the stock is practically worthless, that unearned dividends were paid out of capital and that the company issued photographs of properties named as its own and it never owned the properties.

Scalded to Death in Train Wreck.
TOLEDO, O., July 7.—When the locomotive of a Toledo, Ann Arbor and Jackson passenger train jumped the rails and toppled into a ditch near West Toledo early to-day, Frank Bretner, thirty-five years old, engineer, of Petersburg, Mich., was scalded to death. Roy Porter, fireman, also of Petersburg, was severely scalded. Forty passengers were shaken up and bruised, none of them seriously.

BRIDEGROOM LOSES RACE TO VATERLAND TO RECLAIM BRIDE

Frantic Husband Fails in Desperate Attempt to Board Biggest Ship.

RUSHED FROM CHICAGO.

Delayed Sailing Enables Southern Planter to Get His Daughter Aboard.

The Vaterland of the Hamburg-American line was half an hour late in sailing to-day. She was delayed by unexpectedly heavy late mails and by the reluctance of those who had come aboard to say good-by to friends among her 3,000 passengers to leave the ship when the bugle sounded. The delay enabled a wrathful parent, George R. Goodwin, a cotton planter of Holly Springs, Miss., to get aboard with his seventeen-year-old daughter, Mrs. Francis K. Evans, of whose young husband Mr. Goodwin energetically disapproved.

Before the gang-plank was hauled ashore young Mr. Evans, who is himself a cotton planter in the Delta country, made a dash down the pier. He was stopped by watchmen who demanded to see his ticket or a pass. Having neither, he first argued and then tried to get past by main force, but in vain. An officer of the line was at last able to understand what was the trouble and directed that he be allowed to go down the pier.

But the big Vaterland was well out in the stream and he was not even able to see his bride's face at the rail. Mr. Evans frantically begged for permission to take after the ship with a tug, but he could not persuade the pier captain of his responsibility. He had only a small sum in his pockets.

"Hattie Goodwin and I have been sweethearts for years," the disconsolate bridegroom told sympathizers who gathered about him as the Vaterland faded into the mists of the lower bay. "The old man does not like me. Never did like me. He ordered me to keep away from his plantation and took a flier at me with a shotgun one time."

"So Hattie and I went to Memphis July 4 and were married by a justice of the peace. We got as far as Chicago before the old man caught us. While I was out he went to the hotel where we were staying and made Hattie leave with him. When he found out I knew they were here in New York he made arrangements in a hurry to take her abroad on the Vaterland, and because the boat was late in sailing had just time to get aboard. But the ship was not late enough for me."

"The old man can't get Hattie's love away from me. I'm going to start some sort of legal action against him for taking my wife. And they will have to come back some time and I know Hattie will come to me as soon as she can get away from her father."

Among the distinguished names on the Vaterland's passenger list were those of Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador; William F. R. Hitt and his wife, who was Miss Katharine Elkins; Marie Rapold and her husband, Rudolph Berger; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stanchfield; Frank B. Kellogg, the trust-buster, and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer.

Runaway Horse Turns In Broadway Fire Alarm

Crashes Into Post of Box, Brings
Out Engines and Scatters Crowd.

The horse attached to a restaurant supply wagon left by its driver, Abraham Harrison, No. 567 West Forty-sixth street, standing at Fifty-second street and Seventh avenue to-day with a feed bag on its head, took fright at an automobile and bolted. As Policeman Hermann of the West Forty-seventh street station tried to catch it at Fifty-fifth street, it dodged into a fire alarm post and tore it down, sending in an alarm and breaking the gas connection supplying the light on the post.

Seventh avenue was crowded and pedestrians' automobiles and other vehicles had to hustle to get out of the way of the horse, which ran on the sidewalk part of the way. Finally Policeman Egan caught it in Long Acre Square and was dragged twenty yards before he brought the animal to a halt.

Meantime several fire companies had responded to the alarm, and a crew from the gas company was summoned to repair the leak, which filled the street with gas and threatened an explosion.

Harrison was summoned to court for failing to tie the wheels of his wagon when he left the horse. He put a weight on its neck, but the animal shook this off when it first began to run.

A WOMAN KILLED MRS. BAILEY, NEW WITNESS NOW SWEARS

Freeport this afternoon that Burns detectives had found the place where the revolver with which Mrs. Bailey was killed was bought. Sheriff Pettit and District Attorney Smith were away at Freeport all day with the Burns men and the informant, who said he "acquainted" because he didn't get money that was promised him and had other grievances besides. The man's statement has been put in the form of an affidavit.

This story got out in Freeport this afternoon and created almost as much excitement as the original crime. It is now believed that Coroner Norton will order an arrest at the conclusion of the inquest to-morrow afternoon. SHOT MEANT TO SCARE, NOT KILL, SAYS CARMAN.

Dr. Carman made a remarkable statement to an Evening World reporter to-day in which he forecast an arrest and complained that the authorities are trying to fasten the crime on his wife. He also advanced the theory that the person who fired the fatal shot was bent merely on frightening Mrs. Bailey and himself—a theory, by the way, that has been held by many investigators ever since the tragedy occurred.

In preparation for submission of the case to the Grand Jury at Minnecola on Thursday, Sheriff Pettit and District Attorney Smith took a surveyor to the Carman home this afternoon.

He surveyed the grounds and building, took measurements of the office and the house with particular reference to front and rear staircases and was instructed to draw a map by which the Grand Jury may be informed of all the surroundings of the tragedy without the necessity of visiting the scene.

William J. Burns, who was employed as an investigator yesterday, is bending all his energies in a search for two women who were in Dr. Carman's waiting room at the time of the shooting. These women ran from the house as soon as they heard Mrs. Bailey exclaim: "Oh, doctor, I am shot."

There were five women in Dr. Carman's waiting room last Tuesday evening. He first attended Miss Hazel Combes and she departed with her friend Anna Kahn, who had accompanied her to the doctor's house. Then he called Mrs. Bailey into his private office.

ONE WOMAN STOUT; THE OTHER SMALL, WEARING GLASSES.
The two women left in the waiting room with George Golder and Archie Post have been vaguely described by the men. One was a stout woman, the other small and wearing eyeglasses.

District Attorney Smith and Sheriff Pettit have suspected that Dr. Carman and his wife know who these women are. But they have been unable to get any trace of them. Burns regards their discovery as a matter of the greatest importance.

It was not difficult to get Dr. Carman to talk to-day. He appeared to be anxious to unburden himself to somebody. Throughout the interview his face wore his characteristic smile. The smile was forced at times, but it is part of his expression—an attribute of the half-fellow-well-met demeanor that had made him popular in Freeport and Nassau County generally.

"You know," said Dr. Carman to the reporter, "that I have done everything in my power to aid the District Attorney. You have been here all the time, and you know I have gone out of my way to help him. I have given him a list of my patients. I have pointed out every person I had the slightest reason to suspect had a grudge against me—and they were very few. I have done all I can and I am about to quit. It is my intention to say nothing from now on except as I am questioned on the witness stand or by the authorities."

DR. CARMAN FORECASTS AN ARREST VERY SOON.

"There will be an arrest in this case pretty soon. I know that. I know that tremendous public pressure is being brought to bear on the authorities and I wouldn't be surprised to see them arrest almost anybody."

"I know they suspect Mrs. Carman of having committed this murder and have tried their best to put it on her. They would have arrested her several days ago if they had had the goods on her. They tried their best, but they failed because she is an innocent woman."

"I have heard a lot of talk about me being unpopular with men of this community because I have performed illegal operations and that an illegal operation performed by me may be back of this murder. On that point I want to say as solemnly and emphatically as I can that I never performed an illegal operation in my life."

"Why, if I had been consulted by Mrs. Bailey about causing the premature birth of a child do you suppose I would have let medicine that I gave her get into the hands of the District Attorney? I had plenty of time to change it. I wasn't born yesterday. I don't know if they have analyzed the medicine, but they will find it to be just what I said—quinine pills."

"As to the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Bailey there were two contrasting and disinterested findings. Mr. Runcie tells me he found traces that indicated to him approaching motherhood, but he found no sign of instrumentation. The physicians agreed with Dr. Runcie that there had been no attempt at an operation, but they went further and said there would have been no occasion for such a thing because they did not think there were any signs of pregnancy."

INSISTS THAT THE FIRING WAS NOT A "PLANT."

"There is a disposition in some circles in Freeport to doubt the story you told of having been fired at in your automobile last Sunday night," the doctor was informed.

"Oh, of course," he agreed. "There are people who say it was a 'plant.' Well, I didn't fire the revolver and I didn't hire anybody to fire it, and the attack was not a 'plant.' I intend to testify on that point before the Coroner at the inquest when it is resumed to-morrow."

"But I can't conceive who could have any desire to kill me. The only cause for a grudge I can think of was a fight a doctor made on me when I was a member of the Board of Health. That wouldn't occasion an attempt on my life."

(The matter referred to by Dr. Carman was a charge made by Dr. Evans, an elderly physician, that Dr. Carman was not reporting all his diphtheria and scarlet fever cases. As a result Dr. Carman severed his connection with the Board of Health.)

The reporter questioned Dr. Carman about his impressions as to the cause prompting the person who fired the shot through his office window last Tuesday night. He said on Wednesday that he thought the assassin meant to kill him. Since then he has revised his idea to conform with that of many who have been following the case.

NOW SAYS THERE WAS NO INTENTION TO KILL.

"I have come to the conclusion," said Dr. Carman, "that the person who fired the shot was bent upon scaring Mrs. Bailey and me. It was a shot intended to frighten, not to kill."

"Who could possibly have such an interest in you and Mrs. Bailey as to fire a shot to frighten you," the reporter asked.

"Your wife, for instance?"

"Oh, no," replied the doctor; "my wife didn't do it. My wife had no reason to want to frighten me or Mrs. Bailey—a woman she had never seen. In fact, for some time previous to the murder my wife and I had been having a second honeymoon."

"As soon as she took out that dictograph she became a happier woman," the doctor said. "She put it in because she suspected she would hear something to confirm her suspicions. She heard nothing that a wife should not hear and the relief from her jealousy transformed her. The only trouble we ever had was over the nurse, as testified to by my wife on the witness stand, and that was only a fifteen-minute row."

"Now, nobody wanted to kill me and I don't think anybody wanted to kill poor Mrs. Bailey. Of course, if anybody had wanted to kill her they would be more likely to do it in my office than outside, where they would be seen on the lawn. But it makes it hard on me. A minute more and she would have been out of my house."

Private detectives and constables are guarding the Carman residence to-day. They have orders to permit no member of the household to leave the premises without permission.

Dr. Carman let it be known to-day that William J. Burns, the private detective, was ordered out of the Carman house last night for trying to intimidate Mrs. Carman. This was after Burns and his assistants had executed a sensational and spectacular scene of the murder in the doctor's office.

Burns was talking to Dr. Carman, Mrs. Carman and Lawyer Levy. Suddenly he approached Mrs. Carman in a menacing way, pointed his finger at her and said:

"Madam, we have come here to find the murderers."

"Here, none of those bulldozing methods," cried Dr. Carman. "Leave me house at once."

Mr. Levy, the lawyer, intervened. There was an apology from Burns and he was permitted to remain in the house on condition that he did not attempt to question Mrs. Carman.

The heart weakness which attacked Mrs. Platt Conklin, Mrs. Carman's mother, as a result of the strain she has undergone since the tragedy, became serious last night and the authorities have been informed that there is grave danger of her death.

ORONER STILL ACTIVE IN HUNT FOR EVIDENCE.

Coroner Norton, after his wordy encounter with Sheriff Pettit yesterday, was not inclined to-day to give up any of the activities which, he believes, his office entail on him. He said that he would continue the inquest at 10 o'clock to-morrow, whether or not the Sheriff or Prosecutor approved of his course.

"The verdict," he added, "will

FOLLOW A CLUE TO SOLVE MYSTERY OF RIVER MURDER

Police Seek a Man of a Certain
Trade Who Is the Owner of an Airedale Dog.

(Special from a Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 7.—In an attempt to throw light on the Mohawk River murder mystery, police are seeking to-day a butcher who owns an Airedale dog. This line of investigation follows discovery of Airedale hairs on the handkerchief which was knotted about the head of the victim and of spots of fallow on some of her clothing.

A man arrested in Hamilton County June 23 on a charge of "beating" a board bill is expected to know something about the murder, so the police were informed to-day by Hamilton County authorities. They say he answers the description of the unidentified man who hired a boat from Claude H. Henson about the time it is thought the murder was committed. This man has been searched for far and wide. The police were requested to send detectives to Hamilton County to question the prisoner.

Several women have visited Police Headquarters, asserting that they can throw some light on the tragedy. They have been examined by a respectful hearing, have been cross-examined and turned away. They have had really nothing to tell which might have had any bearing on the case. Not a clue has turned up since the finding of the head and arm on Saturday.

Detectives interviewed dentists in the city yesterday and to-day to learn if possible which, if any, of them had filled the teeth of the murdered girl. Little progress was made in this direction. The dentists who saw the teeth declared that the fillings were several years old. Many stores have been visited with the object of finding where the clothing of the victim was bought. All of this has been of no avail. The police are beginning to believe that the clothing was not bought here.

Some of Schenectady's observing citizens who are following the case with the greatest interest have advanced the theory that the murdered girl was the victim of white slavery. A police man has been put into the theory. People here declare that the white slave industry flourishes to an alarming extent in this city, the houses of detestable houses conducted by lawless and brutal Italians. They assert that many girls have been brought here from other cities and villages and forced into a life of shame.

be decisive and will fix the charge of shooting Mrs. Bailey on one person. I am glad Mr. Smith has brought the detectives into the case. He has the right to employ them if the county will pay for them."

CONFIRMS STORY OF A WOMAN'S THREAT TO KILL DR. CARMAN.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—John Howe of this city, who was reported to have telephoned David Kennedy of Freeport that a woman with whom Howe was cruising had threatened to kill Dr. Carman, was found here to-day and confirmed the story told by Dr. Carman to detectives.

Howe, who is in business here, said that summer before last he invited a Freeport man and his wife to an outing on Great South Bay, L. I., in his motorboat. He would not give their names.

"We landed at an island," Howe said, "and ran across David Kennedy and Dr. Carman. I knew them both. The moment we spotted them, the woman in our party screamed and ran back to the boat. Her husband remained where he was, surprised and nonplussed by his wife's action. I ran to the boat after her. I found her on a seat in hysterics. She was screaming 'That man ruined my husband and ruined me. I am going to kill him if it takes a lifetime.' She picked up a paperknife shaped like a dagger and started to leave the boat. I caught hold of her and kept her back and asked whom she meant. 'Dr. Carman,' she said."

Howe said the woman refused to explain her actions and demanded to be taken home at once. When her husband came aboard the party returned to Freeport.

"Neither one of them spoke of the incident again," said Howe. "I did not try to find out the reason for it and never gave it another thought until this murder occurred. I thought over it a lot since and decided it was my duty to tell of it, although I hated to do so."

Howe said he telephoned Kennedy of the incident and the latter recalled it and said he would notify the police. Howe also said that he had a telephone message from Freeport to-day that detectives had gone to the woman's house but did not find her at home.

THE CHINESE EDITOR.
(From the Manchester Guardian.)

Chinese and Japanese are believed to be excessively polite. How this courtesy is extended to the business of editing is seen in the policy of the Tsin-Pao, a Chinese journal of note. This is the way in which the editor of the Tsin-Pao declines a contribution: "Most venerable brother of the sun and the moon, your slave begs at your feet. I kiss the earth before you. I implore your permission to speak and to leave your most venerated manuscript passed before our eyes, and we were ravished by it. We have read it with the greatest interest. If I ventured to publish it the president would order me to take this jewel as a model and never depart from it or have the audacity to publish anything inferior to it. But my long experience of letters has taught me that such pearls can be produced once, and once only, in ten thousand years. So I must return it. I entreat you to forgive me. I am at your feet, the slave of your slaves."

CHAUFFEUR'S WIFE DROPS HER DIVORCE NAMING MISS MCGILL

After This Surprise Is Sprung
in Court Chauffeur's Suit Against Wife Begins.

To the disappointment of a large crowd of spectators, who had gathered early in the Court of Chancery in Jersey City to-day, Mrs. Anna M. Mayer withdrew her suit for divorce against Walter M. Mayer in which Miss Eleanor A. McGill, heir to the million dollar estate left by her father, John A. McGill, the Jersey City banker, was named as co-respondent. Mayer was Miss McGill's chauffeur.

The crowd expected to hear Miss McGill defend herself against the accusations as she had been compelled to do at the trial of Mrs. Mayer's $50,000 alienation of affection suit against the heiress. Mrs. Mayer got a verdict for $6,500 in that case and her lawyer, John A. Bentley of Jersey City, expected to introduce new testimony not admitted in the alienation suit.

When Attorney Bentley requested the dismissal in open court Vice-Chancellor Lewis seemed surprised. He called the lawyers on both sides into his chambers and after a conference dismissed the wife's suit.

Then the suit of Mayer against his wife for divorce was called for trial. Leo Mayer, brother of the chauffeur, testified that he had called upon his sister-in-law one evening and found her in the company of Otto Dickow of Jersey City. The witness said that Mrs. Mayer did not seem very glad to see him, as both she and Dickow knew that he had seen them kiss.

"You are sure it was a kiss?" Mayer was asked.

"Yes, positively. It looked like one and sounded like one," the witness replied.

SORREL MARE OUTFRONS LOCOMOTIVE AT A MILE

Now Erie's Patrons Know That Ancient Speed Jest Is No Joke.

NASSAUC, N. J., July 7.—Erie Railroad's lack of speed has been the subject of jest for many years, but it's a fact that Henry Haff's sorrel mare beat an Erie train in a mile straightaway to-day, and at that the animal had to run over the ties and might have improved her time with good footing.

Haff delivers the parcel post and was carrying a package to a house in Gregory avenue when the mare took fright and dashed for the Erie tracks. She crashed through the lower gates and passed in front of a train so close that the engine ripped the wagon to pieces. The mare was not hurt and she headed down the tracks alongside the locomotive.

For a time the engine held its own, but the sorrel pressed into the main station a mile away several lengths in the lead and running strong. There she came to a stop and train bands caught her. A staff claimed the animal later and says her thinking of putting her on the track now.
